The discharges not excessive or inment;

Doan's Kidney Pills will do this for you.

They watch the kidneys and cure them when they're sick.

L. E. Monk, Pleasant St., South Paris, fered a great deal from severe pains in the small of my back and a soreness across my kidneys. As the kidney secretions were unnatural, I decided that my kidneys needed a tonic and procured a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills. They helped me from the first and I continued their use until I was restored to good health. Since that time I have always kept Doan's Kidney Pills in the house."

Optimism vs. Pessimism.

Written for the Advertiser.

I'm tired of hearing prattlers prate,
On how I dread that doleful cry, Seasons too early or too late,
Too wet or else it is too dry.
I'm sick of hearing growers groan,
And then with that increasing scowl,
At moon will have a killing frost.
If God gives us a perfect day,
To drive away our petty sorrow, We're sure to hear the grumbler say,
Well, it will surely rain tomorrow.
If any little thing goes wrong,
We scold and fret and fume and fuss,
We trouble trouble long and long,
Before the trouble troubles us.
What poor short sighted souls are we,
Contenting that our ways are best;
They'd give us sorrow and unrest.
Let pessimistic thoughts take wings
And vanish like the morning dews, Look on the bright side of things And cheerish optimism grows.
Let's leave the management of all To Him who fully understands,
The world and all our human fail, Yet holds the oceans in His hands.
Let's shrug off this self conceit,
And let the world be what it please,
Old earth will then seem so complete We'll want to live a thousand years.

Why the Horse Rolls.
Horses are fond of rolling on the ground, and no animals shake themselves more thoroughly than they do, living on open plains.
On being turned loose at the end of a journey an Arab horse rolls in the sand, which acts as blotting-paper, absorbing exudations from the body. A shake removes the sand, and the coat soon dries.
Cavalrymen in hot climates sometimes put sand on their horses as the simplest and quickest way of drying them.

Rhubarb Conserve.

With the rhubarb season at its height, the housewife who enjoys sweetmeats with her cold meats or bread and butter in winter surely must not fail to make a supply of rhubarb conserve. This is the recipe:—Peel and cut the rhubarb into inch lengths; to six pounds of the fruit allow an equal amount of sugar. Extract the juice from two lemons, two oranges and, removing the seeds, run the pulp and rind through the food chopper. Add to this the rhubarb and then add a large cupful of chopped almonds, the same amount of chopped English walnuts and a half a pound of dates stoned and cut in half. Let the mixture stand in a covered crock or earthenware dish over night. In the morning put on the stove, where it will come to a boil slowly; boil until it jellies, then pour into jelly glasses and when cold cover with paraffin.
Occasionally the rhubarb is so tart that a little more sugar is necessary; if so, add to taste.

Life a Pleasure.

Dear Editor:—To the question asked by so many of my old friends, "What will you do without your outdoor life, tied down by household cares?" I would like to give a little idea how the "great outdoors" is still mine to enjoy.
My first summer was spent in a camp in New Hampshire within view of the "White Hills," and last fall I very wisely chose a home in this little village among the mountains, on the line of the G.
R. with easy access to the larger villages and cities. The winter was indeed a bit lonely, but the summer is more than paying for that now.
Although only the distance of a little more than the width of Norway's main street from the postoffice and stores, yet my home, being under a small hill, has but one neighbor's house in view, and even that is now almost hidden by the tall maples surrounding it. Just the great mountains, crowding each enough to seem to touch one's head, greet the eye in every direction, and the road winds past to the Andro-scoggin.

My home itself, a simple little brown country house, sets in the center of about a half acre of land, and faces the west.
The front lawn has several raised flower beds all seeded with various cultivated blossoms to be. The south rising gradually toward the village ridge has a circle of eight white birches and two pine trees. In their shade I have sown my hawthorn. And here are my wild flowers, growing in their own sweet pleasure, some naturally and some carefully transplanted during the pleasant spring days. Blue violets have sprung to me every where in the meadow grass, and now the strawberry blossoms and a few raspberry bushes promise a little feast later.

The north side slopes away from the veranda to the garden, which extends around to the east, and is surrounded by apple, pear, plum and cherries, while a few currant bushes will add their little offering in due time. The trees were very lovely some weeks ago with their fragrant white blossoms. Birds are building all around and their morning songs have greeted us throughout the spring.
The veranda is my favorite resting place. This I have had completely screened for an outdoor room and fitted up exactly like a camp, with couch, chairs, table, pictures, etc., a cool dining-room for a hot day, a splendid sleeping porch at night.

A rising line of post card views of Pennesseewassee from channel to brook inlet fastened in correct order on one wall gives me a frequent "dream trip" over the lake, just a glance recalling many an old friend's face and pleasant incident of the past.
My housework is done in the early morning when the kitchen fire is really welcome. I very seldom have hot dinner to get so the day is mine to enjoy as I please. Wild River is not far away, and that offers good fishing, while the Androscoggin gives me canoeing. There I can paddle for more than six miles into New Hampshire, winding in and out among the hills of the narrow valley.
This trip is truly as lovely as the now famous Songo, aye to me it is even more beautiful, for the mountains give an added charm. Whenever I wish, I take a paddle, sometimes carrying a lunch, and spending a whole day just as I used to on my old home lake. And this will be often, for all who know me truly, know that canoeing is my favorite of all outdoor pastimes.

There are many lovely walks to enjoy.
Only two mountains have I climbed as yet, Saddleback and Tumble-Down Dick, besides one high hill, but I hope to tramp them all in the future.

How do I plan my work? I mentioned before, and every rainy day I try to do all things possible to make the next fair day's work less. As in camp the early morning hours were the nicest part of a summer's day so it is in the country home. Here the sun climbing triumphantly over the mountain tops, greeted by a sweet chorus of varied bird songs is vastly different from a village sunrise over the blackened chimney of a shoe factory and the monotonous "chirp," "chirp" of the English sparrow.

Aside from the necessary "mending," and occasional machine work, sewing, which constitutes so much of the average woman's life, has no part whatever in mine. And here lies another reason of time for the outdoors. Of course some portions of some days are prosy enough, as every housewife knows, but with a happy combination of my old life with the new these days are passing swiftly and pleasantly.
And all the time there is a little life being woven day by day with our own, a little life to watch and care for and guide and love. This is the greatest joy of all.
Three lives thus blended together, living only for the other, brings a deeper, truer happiness than a selfish life of pleasure.
Each day sees a change.
Hand in hand we'll lead our baby Where the brightest sunbeams play And the fairest flowers are blooming All along life's future way.
We will smooth away the tangles Where the little feet must tread;
We will strive to guide our darling Where the sailor's steps are led.
Sometimes we may grow weary With life's burdens day by day,
And our feet discolor aged feet;
Over the rough thorns of our way;
Then 'twill be those baby fingers Reaching toward us from the light That will smooth away the tangles Love will make it all come right.
Each day the baby-mind is waking to the outside world, and he loves the outside world already. Every suitable day he sleeps on the screened veranda, lying an hour at a time after his nap just watching the treetops moving against the sky. He enjoys his daily rides in his carriage which is well adapted to the country roads, having the best of springs and with perfect protection from sun and wind.

Such is my life—work in the early morning, midday and afternoon varied with simple outdoor pleasure suited to the baby-life, and then when the western hills, glowing with love cradle the weary sunbeams, then comes "Rock-a-by," dearest of all the day to the true mother-heart.

Sleep, my little one, sleep tonight, Mother's arms are round you tight, Lay your head on mother's breast, Close your little blue eyes and rest.
Sleep, my little one, go to sleep, Mother will a fond watch keep,
She will never close her eyes and rest, While her baby boy sleeping lies.
Do not worry, do not fret, Mother's arms are round you yet, Mother's love will shield you dear,
Do not worry, mother's here.

And so, dreaming and planning for my boy's future, as all nature, as I am very happy in my new life-home, and yet out of doors.

 erected on the old Blanchard farm on the Swift river road, and which was sold not long ago by the owner, A. G.
 Goddard, to the town for a town farm,

 South Rumford, the contractor.
 Mr. Lapham and a crew of ten men began work two weeks ago on a barn 50x14 feet and this barn is now ready for the hay which will be got in next week, beginning after the fourth. Friday work was begun on the house, which is expected to be ready for occupancy in another two weeks, according to Gardner O. Cobb, selectman.
 This building will be two stories, 38 by 40 feet and will have fifteen rooms.
 The frame is already well up. The overseer of the town farm has not yet been appointed, but there are several of the town's poor who are all ready to be brought to the farm for their future home.
 The buying of the farm and the work of seeing that suitable buildings and stock and furnishings, town to the board of selectmen at the last town meeting, the board being Louis H. Veilux, Harry Hutchins of Rumford Corner and G. O. Cobb.

Returned to Favor.
 If there is a spinnet or harpsicord in the family it may now be relieved of its coat of dust, brought down from the dark corner of the attic or from the depths of the storage house, and placed in the parlor or drawing room. Musicians predict a revival of the musical instruments of other days, and declare that we may expect to see dainty fingers trip over yellowed keys in preference to the shining ivory of the present day upright and grand piano.
 This means, of course, a revival of the old-time style of ballad, for the harpsicord could never adapt itself to the demands of ragtime or the finger gymnastics of the modern pianoforte compositions. Often the question of where to find these seventeenth century instruments that are to revive the music of their time is answered in antique shops, especially in the smaller towns, where they have been picked up by dealers for a song.
 The real ones are easily recognized by their tone, which has not been successfully imitated by modern makers. The accompaniment will appeal through its quaint music to the girl who likes to do the most unusual things.—Portland

OXFORD COUNTY ADVERTISER, FRIDAY, JULY 7, 1911

A Sterilized Generation.
 A New York newspaper, in a satirical account lately on the outdoor class for feeble children in Montclair, expressed the fear that the children of this coming generation will be as guarded from the crobes in early life that they will fall an easy prey when they have to go out into a more unsterilized and unsanitary world.

Take the immigrant, whose health is being closely looked into, as well as his means, his ability and his plans. Some of our own ancestors were, probably, more of the latter than of the former.
 They were in the rudiments of our government institutions. No one handed them a handbook couched in simple language, telling them of George Washington, the Declaration, or the system of State and National Government.
 They had to find out a great deal for themselves.

They went to schools that today are considered a disgrace, but they did make a lot. They got into politics and daily control, they and their practically, they and their practical government of all our large cities.

Is all this to change? Is character to be developed hereafter from above, from without of life, fortune, ambition to be fenced, fostered, guided that no one can fall, no one go aside out of the way? Is there to be no fighting, no struggle in the level, sanitary, dustless streets of a new civil life?

No more Locomotives spitting rails and steam, no more the tall dip of the reading the Bible by a tall dip of the more Garfield treading the tows. An eight-hour day; a living wage; a proteid diet, weighed and measured; a filtered, germless, sterilized water.
 The last words of science have not been written. Some day we shall find that the old sneer of Ingersoll was that God did make health contagious as well as disease, and that we every germ whose contagion we dread we are in contact with a myriad that we necessary to our very existence.

Contact of man with man touch dirt, yes, germs and sweat, are fundamental conditions of life. Progress will not go on if a crutch is put under every one who is halting or slow of foot. Life will not go on in filtered air. A sterilized existence seems to be the dream of the hour. But the robust spirit of the race will assert itself, and some day, the coming generation will laugh at the pains we took to hedge ourselves in from what was a vital necessity to our very health. Depend upon it, the ancients were right. There is no excellence without great labor, and the only development of character possible is in the striving to overcome.

 kota spent a few days with Mrs. Ruth Buck and family the past week.

 left Wednesday for Montpelier, Vt., where he will canvas during the summer vacation.

Geneva Fogg and Villa Fogg who graduated with honors from Bridgton Academy on June 14 are at their respective homes. Two Harrison students carried off the class honors last year.

 bert Buck's the past week were the Misses Ethel, Alice and Grace Brett, also Theodore Brett of Welchville, William Kilborn, 2d, of Portland and Helen C. Greene and brother Howard of North Bridgton, all of whom were present at the lawn party. Saturday morning Howard and Russell took several of the young people for an automobile drive through Harrison and North Bethel. An interesting part of the drive was the meeting of the gypsies, who are touring the country on a plying expedition or as taking a pleasure trip.

On Friday evening, June 23, the teacher and pupils of the South Harrison school gave an entertainment and lawn party on the grounds of the teacher's the South Harrison school.

When it is remembered that the killing of one fly may prevent the hatching of a dead fly and that the value of a dead fly can be ascertained by the number of flies that have been been charged with conveying all manner of filth disease and now comes a physician who says infantile paralysis is communicated by flies.

It is generally understood that on July 1st the laws passed by the last legislature in regard to the abolishment of the liquor agencies will go into effect and that the liquor agencies of Maine will be a thing of the past.

Women as Well as Men are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind,
discourages and lessens ambition; beauty,
vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds
the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble,
and both need the same great remedy.
The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root.

Among the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr.
Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Among the graduates of the Medical School of Maine at Brunswick this year are Albert K. Baldwin, formerly pastor of the Congregational church at South Paris, Charles M. Wilson of Waterford, and Harold W. Stanwood of Rumford.

Girls and Love Letters.

The advice of the old lawyer to his son was that, no matter what his relations with womankind, he should never write a love letter and never destroy one.
It is probable that this counsel of perfect wisdom fell on deaf ears, for when any particular man is consumed by the desire for any particular woman he at once commences writing love letters.

He gushes and gasses and romances to such an extent that when he gets into a divorce case, or a breach of promise action there is about as little hope for
him as for a woman who keeps a diary.
If before dispatching their billets doux
they would ask themselves the simple question, "How will this stuff look in a law court?" they would tear up 80 per cent of their love letters as soon as they were written.

A love letter is only a joke to the man who has not written it. The one who has to pay the $10,000 damages and costs to see where the fun comes in.

It is one of the settled facts in the history of love letters that men will write and women will keep. A woman cherishes her love letters as she cherishes her mirror or her powder puff.
She ties them with blue ribbons and perfumes with violet de parais.

Years after she goes to bed, and pergesses them to her bosom before she does her hair up in the morning. She reads them for weeks and knows where
to find them for years, and about the only safe thing the man who has written them can do is to marry her.

Years after she may remind him that he told her in one of them that he could gaze into her dear eyes forever, while
now he does not stay at home long enough to gaze into them for five minutes, but she cannot sue him for breach of promise or have his letters read in court to make him the laughing stock
of his fellow citizens.

Of all literary compositions the love letters of men contain the maximum of twaddle and the minimum of sense.
The only explanation is that every man in love tries to become a poet.

A woman writes more convincing love letters than a man, because she writes everything out of her heart, while a man writes anything which comes into his head and the weaker the head the more he slips over. If he were to confide himself to inquiring how his adored enjoyed herself yesterday and where she would like to enjoy herself tomorrow,
hoping she was quite well as it left him at present, all would be well. But that is not his way.

He vows all sorts of absurdities, pins himself down to all sorts of pledges, and
throws in rhapsodies about her eyes, her lips, her hair and her teeth.

A love letter ought to proceed on business lines. The fondest lover in the world cannot tell a woman more about her eyes and hair and teeth than she knows herself. Writing to his wife he may commence his letter, "My p. p. forever," and end it, "Your own forever," and be perfectly safe even if she has her doubts about
him; but this sort of thing to a girl he perhaps, dreams of making his wife in a world where there is many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip is not a wise insurance against accidents, to say the least.
Oh, for the business love letter, if any!

Oxford Bears' Fruit Growers.

Maine fruit received another boost in the right direction Saturday, when the Oxford Bears' Fruit Growers' Association was formed at Buckfield.

The plans for such an association have been under way since last April and, due to the strenuous efforts of the Conant brothers, have at last materialized. When Mr. Yeaton, of the Department of Agriculture, was in Hebron last April, he succeeded in arousing a great deal of enthusiasm among the orchardists of that section. Later the association was talked of and in order to get it started the seven Conant brothers decided to organize, inasmuch as they have about seven thousand trees of their own, well cultivated, well sprayed and well taken care of generally, together with an abundance of confidence and enthusiasm in fruit work.

The meeting was held in Buckfield at the home of Everett Conant, the following being present: A. A. Conant of Hebron, Wilson Conant of Buckfield, George Conant of Hebron, Harry Conant of Buckfield, G. A. Yeaton and A. R.
Gardner of Augusta.

The article of incorporation, drawn up by laws, were drawn up, directors and officers were chosen
and the meeting duly adjourned to a near future date for the adoption of the
by-laws.

In choosing the name of the association, the "Oxford Bears" seemed particularly appropriate on account of its historical value as a land mark in that section. It has a wide spread reputation and seems to be ideal as a trade mark.

The Oxford orchards are scattered over Hebron and Buckfield in more or less close proximity to each other and
are so located that transportation is reduced to a minimum. They comprise a number of varieties, but are chiefly confined to Ben Davis, Baldwin and Spy.
The Conant brothers, themselves, are widely known, energetic and progressive business men, and it is plainly evident that things will hum in the apple line this fall.

Women as Well as Men are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind,
discourages and lessens ambition; beauty,
vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear
eased.

that it is not unusual for a child to be
habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miser-
able with kidney and bladder trouble,
and both need the same great remedy,
Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold
by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar
about Swamp-Root.

of the Congregational church at South Paris, Charles M. Wilton of Waterford,
and Harold W. Stanwood of Rumford.

write a love letter and never destroy one.
It is probable that this counsel of per-
any particular man is consumed by a fever for any particular woman he is at once commencing writing love letters.

him as for a woman who keeps a diary.
If before dispatching their billets doux
were written.

fails to see where the fun comes in.

write and women will keep. A woman
ishes her mirror or her powder puff.
fumes with violette de parmes. She kisses them before she goes to bed, and presses them to her bosom before she
them can do is to make sure they are not found.

Years after she may remind him that he told her in one of them that he could
gaze into her dear eyes forever, while
utes, but she cannot see him for breach
of his fellow citizens.

letters of men contain the most twaddle and the least sense. The explanation is that every man in love tries to become a poet.

would like to enjoy herself tomorrow,
hoping she was quite well as it left him,
it is not his way.

Be vows all sorts of absurdities, pins
throws in rhapsodies about her eyes, her lips, her hair and her teeth. Writ-
letter, "My precious darling," and end
it, "Your own forever," and be perfectly
him; but this sort of thing to a girl he, perhaps, dreams of making his wife in the world where there is many a wife insured, the cap and the lip is not a wise insurance against accidents, to say the least.
Oh, for the business love letter, if any!

Oxford Bears' Fruit Growers.

the right direction Saturday, when the Oxford Bears' Fruit Growers' Association was formed at Buckfield.

The plans for such an association were first suggested by the late April
Conant brothers, have at last material-
ized. When Mr. Yeaton, of the Depart-
thusiasm in fruit work.

ing: Messrs. A. A. Conant of
Hebron, Wilson Conant of Buckfield,
of Buckfield, G. A. Yeaton and A. K.
Gardner of Augusta. The articles of incorporation and by-laws were drawn
by-laws.

In choosing the name of the association, the "Oxford Bears" seemed to be particularly appropriate on account of
trade mark.

The Conant orchards are scattered over Hebron and Buckfield in more or
fined to Ben Davis, Baldwin and Spyglass. The Conant brothers, themselves, are wideawake, energetic and progressive
this fall.

GREENWOOD.

A Good Fish.

To young Loring Roberts belongs the distinction of securing the largest fish taken from Overst Pond this season, a landlocked salmon, tipping the scales at exactly four pounds. This was early in the morning of July 3d.

Loring, after catching several small ones that by law had to be consigned to their native element again, got some what discouraged, as he has been a very persistent fisher at the pond this season with a catch up to the date mentioned of just two trout that cleared the law.

He had, however in the mean time secured a live minnow about four inches long and attached him to his hook.

With this bait he fished diligently for some time without results and was about to give up when low, and behold, something was doing in that immediate vicinity that made the other fishermen sit up and take notice. A rush, through the water accompanied by the whizzing of the line on the reel, then a jump full three feet clear of the water and all had a first view of the beauty thirty feet away.

There was excitement in plenty. Mind you, Mr. Salmon was hooked on a common number three Kirby hook and there wasn't a landing net in the crowd.

How to get the fish was a problem; but soon solved as after events proved. While the rest of the crowd were abouting all kinds of advice to Loring about the best method of playing his fish Arthur Cummings, improvised a landing gear out of a narrow board and a green sawyer.

By this time the struggles of the fish had nearly ceased and upon the second attempt the sweater was dipped under him and he was triumphantly landed in the boat.

It was then discovered that in one of his jumps from the water, he had securely fastened a half hitch of the line around both jaws. Had this not happened the chances are, with the gear that Loring was fishing with he could not have handled him; and then some more. Loring feels pretty big and for one we do not blame him.
